ANOTHER WAR NOW LOOMS IN NEAR EAST

WILD AUTOMOBILE ON SOUTH BRAND BUCKS ANOTHER INTO WINDOW

Pane of Plate Glass Comes Down With Crash; Other Accidents Reported

A crash of breaking glass and the sound of cracking wood at 6:30 o'clock last night brought A. P. Jenson from the kitchen of his bakery at 519 South Brand boulevard out to the sidewalk to get more details about the "explosion."

It was neither an explosion nor a hurricane. It was merely Charles Psenner of 409 South Glendale avenue apparently drumming up business for a glass company.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenson arrived on the scene just in time to help shove the rear end of Dr. T. C. Young's seven passenger Fiat touring car out of the air which had formerly been occupied by a pane of plate glass.

How It Happened

According to report, Mr. Psenner was backing the machine out of the Psenner garage at 601 South Brand boulevard. Something went wrong with the mechanism and it backed about 100 feet north on Brand boulevard narrowly missing a pole en route.

The north plate glass window of the Glendale Glass & Glazing company at 521 South Brand and the south window of the Jenson Bakery were both smashed. One of the supports to the second floor was knocked out and it was feared for a time that this part of the building might collapse. Another upright was soon jacked up in place as a substitute.

This morning while A. P. Jenson was sweeping up the broken glass, Joseph Kulzer and Ernest Oppenheim were making plans to replace the glass which is valued at about $200. The total damage, which will amount to about $500, is covered by insurance.

An automobile trunk on the rear of Dr. Young's machine was badly damaged. Otherwise, the car was uninjured.

Some Other Crashes

Lloyd A. Dentro of 349 West Maple street was driving north on Columbus avenue Saturday morning while Ira Wilhelm of 332 Vista avenue, Pasadena, was motoring west on Colorado street. Their machines collided. One of the rear wheels, tires and fenders of Mr. Dentro's car was damaged while the front axle and steering apparatus of Mr. Wilhelm's car was bent as a result of the impact. Mr. Wilhelm's car was pulling a trailer.

The left front fender of the automobile driven south on Verdugo road by Jesse P. Hollingsworth of 406 West Dryden street was struck Saturday afternoon by the sidecar on a motorcycle which turned into Verdugo road from Maple street.

Broadway and Jackson street was the scene of a collision yesterday afternoon. John W. Hamilton of Pasadena was driving west on Broadway. James W. Hardy of Gardena was going east on Broadway and turned into North Jackson street. Occupants of both cars were badly shaken up. Mr. Hamilton was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Ed N. Radke to Build English Type of Home

Ed N. Radke, local jeweler, of 109 South Brand boulevard, this morning signed a contract with W. W. Walcott of 320 Pioneer drive for the construction of a $5,000 six-room bungalow of the English type at 720 Howard street. Features of the new home will be a sleeping porch with Pullman windows. The basement will be provided with a furnace.

The altitude of their new property is especially pleasing to Mr. and Mrs. Radke, who are now living at 405 West Doran street. They expect to be able to move into their new home in ninety days.

Seasonal Rainfall Far Behind Mark Reached Year Ago

AGAIN it rains! But even at that the .25 of an inch that has fallen in the last twenty-four hours fails to bring the seasonal record even in sight of the record a year ago.

According to H. E. Bartlett, weather man, of 333 West Broadway, adding the .25, the season record to date is 6.37 as compared with the 1922 season record a year ago today of 17.52 inches.

The rain is proving beneficial and little damage is reported. A dispatch from San Pedro says one mile of double tracks on the main line of the Pacific electric from Los Angeles to San Pedro, near Wilmington, was washed out during the night by a flood of waters from a broken dredge pipe line. Passenger and freight service is practically at a standstill until the damage can be repaired.

OFFICERS PROBE TWO BURGLARIES

Valuable Loot Is Stolen by Sneak Thieves in Raids During Week-End

Several burglaries occurred over the week-end in Glendale.

Three diamond rings, an owl stickpin with diamond eyes, a brooch with six or seven small diamonds, a garnet ring and a number of gold pieces were stolen Saturday afternoon from 1028 North Louise street, the home of Mrs. T. M. Smith.

The robbery was investigated by Officer Ralph Baugh and Officer E. Epps. They found that entrance had been gained through a side window. Footprints were observed in the yard.

Mrs. C. L. Booth and her daughter, Miss Josephine Booth, returned home about 2:20 Saturday afternoon in their automobile. As they drove into the driveway, Miss Booth noticed a man hastily sneak out of the back door. He escaped before the police department could be notified.

A later investigation revealed the fact that this man and a companion had gone across a vacant lot to Elk avenue, where they had gotten into a Ford and driven off.

A brooch belonging to Miss Booth is the only article missing.

He says there is a better understandin' between merchant and patron and that this spirit of co-operation is increasin' right along. PUPILS MUST ATTEND SCHOOL SITUATED IN OWN DISTRICTS

Permits Allowing Students to Enter Other Schools Should Be Sought Early

"OWING to the crowded condition of some of the schools, it will be impossible to grant permits for children to attend school in a district other than that of their residence with the same freedom as heretofore," asserts a statement issued by Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, in regard to the new term which commences February 5.

"Parents desiring such permits should apply at my office during the week before school opens," he continued. "However, no permits will actually be issued until the second day of the school term, at which time it will be possible to determine what conditions are. Even though they have applied for a permit, parents are requested to send their children for the first two days of the term to the school in their own district.

Minimum Age Limit

"The legal age for entering school is six years. An allowance of three months is made. This means that in order to enter the first grade a child would have to be six before May 5th. No beginner will be admitted after the close of the first month of the term.

"Kindergartens will be open at the Columbus, Colorado, Broadway, Cerritos, Pacific, Central, Acacia, Doran and Magnolia schools. The law states the kindergarten age to be from four and one-half to six years. An allowance of three months is made in this case, also. Parents are advised not to send their children to kindergarten until they are at least four years and nine months' old. A child of five will get much more out of the kindergarten work than a child of four and a half."

Seventh and eighth grades are taught only in the two intermediate schools. Only the first and second grades are taught at the Magnolia school.

District Lines

Grand View school, Fifth and Justin streets—all of Grand View.

Central school, Central avenue and Dryden street—north of Burchett street, west of Jackson street and east of Grand View.

Columbus school, Columbus avenue and Doran street—south of Burchett street, west of Brand boulevard and north of Broadway.

Doran school, Doran and Everett streets—south of Burchett street, east of Brand boulevard and north of Jackson street. The section east of Jackson street, north of the center line of Wilson avenue and west of a line midway between Cedar and Belmont streets is in this district, also.

Broadway school, Broadway and Sycamore Canyon road—south of Monterey road, east of Cedar street and north of Maple street. Three additional sections are: North of Windsor road and east of Sycamore Canyon road; north of Broadway, south of Wilson avenue and east of Glendale avenue; and south of Broadway, north of Harvard street and east of Everett street.

GREAT RUHR BASIN COMPLETELY CUT OFF BY RING OF SOLDIERS

Virtual Martial Law in All Areas Held by French; 200,000 on Strike

BULLETIN

COLOGNE, Jan. 29.—Representatives of German Catholic organizations today sent out a protest addressed to the "whole world" against French policy in the Rhineland.

ESSEN, Jan. 29.—The great Ruhr basin, with its coal fields and industries, was completely isolated today. General De Goutte, French commander in chief, has issued a proclamation, tightening the state of siege into virtual martial law in all areas held by French and Belgian troops.

German officials regard General De Goutte's movement as a plan to break down completely German resistance.

Serious property destruction was reported from various quarters.

Railway traffic is paralyzed. A few passenger and military trains were moved, but freight transportation is at a standstill.

Telephone and telegraph communication is crippled by the strike of German employes.

Berlin sent word that appeals for assistance were being sent out for the German strikers in the Rhineland. It is questioned, however, whether French military authorities will allow food trains to enter the Ruhr so long as the German workers defy the occupational forces with strikes.

Many Workers Idle

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29.—There are approximately 200,000 German men and women workers idle today in the Rhineland and Ruhr as the result of strikes or shut-downs due to fuel shortage and paralysis of rail and water transportation, said a dispatch from Essen.

Half a dozen police stations sent men and automobiles when early reports had it that many had been killed. The building, 300 feet by 150 feet, in which the blast occurred, was damaged from $10,000 to $15,000.

Twenty men at work were flung pell-mell in all directions by the concussion. All were choking and gasping in the steam and gas when firemen and police dragged them into the fresh air. The blowing out of a gasket was believed by companies to have caused the blast.

As he drew near the soldier swung a crutch to strike the king, but he was seized by policemen and hurried off to a police station.

League of Nations Meeting Dimmed By Two War Clouds

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Two threatening war clouds, one in Central Europe and the other in the Near East, loomed up on the international horizon when the council of the League of Nations met here today. Before the meeting ends, the League of Nations may be called upon to arbitrate in two quarters—first, between Germany and France; second, between Turkey and the allies.

Earle Balfour of England will present Great Britain's Mosul claims tomorrow and probably will invite the league to intervene in the Near East in the interests of peace, if the Lausanne conference fails.

Hjalmar Branting of Sweden, plans to seek league intervention in the Rhineland if opportunity offers.

When the meeting assembled in the Luxembourg palace shortly after 11 o'clock with Rene Viviani, former French premier, in the chair, it was announced that the formal agenda called only for discussion of the league budget and routine matters, but that "other subjects undoubtedly would be introduced."

Earle Balfour, in his statement on the Mosul issue, will contend that Great Britain's interests in the Mosul oil fields are based upon two considerations:

First, that Mosul is a part of Mesopotamia (for which England was granted a mandate) and not part of the Turkish state, as Angora claims.

Second, that the British have commercial concessions in Mosul, which cannot be disregarded without a breach of international law and usage.

It is certain, however, that the league will take no action, in the Near East, unless Angora refuses to sign the Lausanne treaty and threatens actual war.

Turkish Troops Said to Be Ready for March on Constantinople

BULLETIN

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 29.—The Turkish nationalist assembly, in debating the Lausanne peace conference events today, deliberated on "the danger of a new Near East war unless Great Britain backs down on the Mosul issue."

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Preparations were in full swing today for another war in the Near East. According to advices received here from various sources, hostilities may be expected immediately, if the Near East peace conference at Lausanne breaks down.

A Belgrade dispatch to the Matin says that George Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation at Lausanne, and Ismet Pasha, leader of the Turkish envoys, have drawn up a Russo-Turkish military alliance. According to this source Russia promises to give Turkey active assistance by sending troops to Mesopotamia and by holding Rumania neutral by massing forces on the Bessarabian frontier. Bessarabia is a former Russian province that was seized by Rumania.

THEATRE POLICY TO BE UNCHANGED

Sale of T. & D. Interests Not Yet Consummated, Says Local Manager

Announcement of the purchase of the Turner & Dahnken theatres by West Coast Theatres, Inc., as carried in the news dispatches of a few days ago, is premature, according to Ralph Allan, manager of the T. D. & L. theatre of Glendale.

Mr. Allan declares that the West Coast Theatres, Inc., hold an option to purchase the T. & D. interests in northern California and in New York state, as well as on the franchises for First National pictures, but, he adds, this deal has not yet been consummated.

In the event that the option is exercised by the West Coast Theatres, Inc., the T. D. & L. circuit of Southern California, of which the local theatre is part, will go to the West Coast Theatres Inc., but C. L. Langley, of the Turner, Dahnken & Langley organization, will retain one-half interest in the T. D. & L. string of theatres and will retain his post as chief executive of the organization, keeping Mr. Allan here as resident manager of the Glendale house.

The policy of the T. D. & L. theatre of Glendale will be maintained on the same lines as in the past, Mr. Allan declares, and it will not make any difference whether the option held by the West Coast Theatres, Inc., is exercised or not, the local playhouse will continue to present the ame meritorious programs and adhere to the same high standards as it has always maintained.

BOY SCOUTS RIDE ON FIRE TRUCKS

Methods of Fighting Flames Explained to Youthful Guests by Chief

Long before the appointed time more than one hundred Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills District had assembled at the Broadway Fire station Saturday morning as the guests of Fire Chief A. H. Lankford, in anticipation of being shown all through the fire house and also being extended a ride on the big fire engines.

The chief welcomed the Scouts and then made the announcement that France Henry, of the Henry-Brown company, had invited all the Scouts up to the plant where the famous Sierra Club Ginger Ale is made for the purpose of giving every boy a free drink of sparkling beverage. The Scouts became hilarious over this announcement and enthusiastically proclaimed Mr. Henry a real good fellow, which was followed by considerable cheering.

Following an exciting ride on the big fire trucks down Broadway and Brand boulevard, which was marked by the clanging of bells, the shrieks of the siren and the yells of the Scouts, the boys returned to the fire station and listened to a short, snappy talk by Chief Lankford on fire fighting methods and how fires may be prevented.

Aid Fire Prevention

"Boy Scouts through the nation, and particularly in California, are doing a great work in the prevention of fires," stated Chief Lankford, "Boy Scout auxiliary fire departments are being organized in every city in the State and we hope that before long there will be one organized in Glendale.",

"More than $500,000,000 worth of damage was done by fire alone last year," he added, "and 15,000 people were burned to death and over 16,000 more people were seriously injured because of the fires.

Chief Lankford showed the Scouts how the big 120 horse power motors worked, stating that they have a capacity of 750 gallons of water per minute at 190 pounds steady pressure. The cost of the engines, according to the Chief, was $12,950 each.

Boy Scouts

"The members of the fire department are your friends," Chief Lankford told the Scouts," and you fellows are always welcome here." Rousing cheers were given the Chief and the other firemen by the Scouts for the good time they had enjoyed and as the last Scout left the building the Chief was seen with a happy peculiar smile on his face.

The Pasadena Boy Scout fire auxiliary was represented by Eagle Scout Herbert Packard, the "chief," who is a nephew of Walter H. Packard, committeeman of Glendale No. 3.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Evening! Are You Happy? Newspapermen And Sleep The Bee Fails To Sting From Farm To Capital

By Gil A. Cowan

WHILE Californians thought that their own legislature had a monopoly on freak law proposals, along comes New Hampshire with a couple that knocks us for a cuckoo clock.

One of these down east ideas is to provide a commission to investigate all homes to determine whether or not they are happy. Now that depends entirely on the day, hour and minute they are visited.

Another prize package is found in the bill making eight hours' sleep compulsory. Wonder how they would get out newspapers if the reporters were required to sleep eight hours? Also, what would a person afflicted with insomnia plead when arrested for staying awake?

Reverting to the eight hours' sleep for newspaper men, the writer believes that few average six hours and are subject to all sorts of hours. No, they do not work more than eight or ten hours, but their work is so jaggered and their time for pleasure so limited by others' convenience that they must keep going eighteen hours a day.

For instance, the metropolitan evening papers' reportorial crews go to work at 6 or 7 a. m., and when the theatre keeps them out until 11, they sleep between the hours of midnight and 5:30 a. m. Not enough, we will admit, but that's all they get.

On the morning papers a man must get up at noon to eat with his family, attend a ball game, or matinee, and then work from 6 or 7 at night and wait until 5 a. m. for breakfast and then get his six hours' sleep.

It's a great life, if you don't weaken. But the family physician and trainmen and many others have just as much or more to contend with. As a newspaper man, I sympathize with the latter.

The lives of this class are so enwrapped in their business they have little time for home or love or the like.

In Oakland the other evening playgoers had the privilege of enjoying some low comedy at "Mother's Millions," starring May Robson.

Just as the star was pleading with her son a prize fight next door got under way. "Soak him, kill him, hit him again," came the cry.

Maybe May wasn't mad. But the audience had to laugh. And then the bell rang for another round in the arena next door.

It was a wild night, so to speak. speak.

Ah, what a nice and friendly feeling a southern Californian finds in the north. Think of the Sacramento Bee, editorially and otherwise, calling Los Angeles' populace "the Lost Tribes of Iowa."

If I remember correctly Illinois leads the list of expatriated. And if the editor of the Bee has anything to say about the Sucker state, I shall have to take him on for a round or two.

But the Bee stands not alone in its stinging reference to the greatest man-made country on God's green earth. It only represents the spirit of those who have sat on the northern hillsides so long they can see no good in anything. Further, they want nothing, not even friendship, it would seem, and there you are.

"San Francisco doesn't want anything served Los Angeles cafeteria style," according to J. Bolivar Badaracco, a legislator from the bay district.

It is just such remarks that keep Iowans and Illinoisans and Kentuckians and Missourians and Michiganders and the rest from the once leading city of the Pacific coast.

Every knock for the south sees 5000 more people settle there daily. And that's that.

Farmers make the best lawmakers. This is the consensus of opinion at the state capital.

In interviewing both the rural and metropolitan delegations the writer finds that the man from the country has a better grasp, higher ideals and less politics to play than the big city feller.

It takes a real man to get into the legislature from the small town where he has been personally measured for years.

And he reads his home town paper and knows what his people want, so he is able to speak for them wisely.

And he doesn't have any organized mob of clubwomen, corporations, unions or other impediments when he comes to vote.

That is the reason why George Davis of Imperial county, Frank Johnson of Kings county, and a score more from the country districts get honest and admirable consideration at the hands of their fellow members.

But behind all of this lies the power of the country newspaper in making those men what they are, in giving them the inside information and in educating an electorate to what is right and wrong.

Woe is the day when country newspapers will be merely rubber stamps, echoes of the metropolis, supplements of political organs.

The independent editor, who can conduct his paper without strings, who can say what he thinks, and truly reflect the real spirit of the community in which he resides—he is man to whom the people of this republic must pay homage.

ARREST ALLEGED PAROLE BREAKER

Car Found in Possession of Prisoner Was Stolen, Police Declare

Police Sergeant Louis Nunn arrested at 7 o'clock yesterday morning Fred Anderson, a parole violator from San Quentin.

While patroling his beat, Officer Nunn noticed a new auto without a rear license plate which was hesitating at the intersection of San Fernando and Los Feliz roads as though uncertain which way to turn.

The driver of the car stated that he was a dairyman and was taking milk in to Los Angeles. He said that the missing plate had gotten lost and that he had left his registration certificate home on the ranch.

Instead of containing milk, however, one of the cans in the rear of the machine contained cream and the other two were filled with gasoline. It is believed that he had stolen this and was carrying it as a reserve supply in order to keep the car going as long as possible.

Besides the driver, the car was occupied by a boy about 16 years of age who later gave the name of Carl Westervelt and said that he was from Mactier, Ontario, Canada.

Driver Admits Theft

After a cross-examination at the police station, the driver of the car admitted his identity. He confessed to having stolen the machine from J. F. Leeper at Modesto. He boasted of having stolen a number of automobiles and having easily evaded arrest.

Anderson is a native of Indiana but was sentenced from Santa Clara county October 14, 1916, to ten years on a charge of grand larceny. Five years later he was released on parole.

Since that time he has been very successful in stealing automobiles. He stated that about the first thing he did after getting out of prison was to cross the border into Mexico and ship stolen machines in the United States.

Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, has received a wire from James A. Johnston, warden of San Quentin, instructing him to hold Anderson until he can be sent for. This request is being complied with and especial attention is being paid to his cell at Fire Station No. 1 in order to make sure that he does not escape.

The other occupant of the automobile asserts that he had only known his companion a short time. A telegram has been sent to Canada for information but it is believed that he s merely a juvenile vagabond.

REALIZATION IS MATURITY'S GIFT

Experience of Apostle Paul Shown as Replica of Christian Life

"To youth life is largely a matter of anticipation, while to maturity it becomes that of realization and a happy remembrance," stated Rev. Philip K. Kemp yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

"In the life of the Apostle Paul we see a replica of the Christian experience. In the beginning he was filled with the zeal to bring the world to Christ and properly so, but with the advance of years and the enforced curtailment of his efforts he could look back with pride at his toil in behalf of the Lord.

"Especially was this so when he thought of certain of his converts, such as those in Philippi to whom one of the epistles from Rome is written.

'I thank God,' he wrote, 'upon every remembrance of you for your fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now.'

"There were places where his efforts had not been so successful but at Philippi there had been an honest and sincere acceptance of his doctrine. This was the joy that came to Paul with the passage of time that he could thank his God for the fellowship in the Gospel with his fellow Christians.

Past Is Not Dead

"The past is not dead, but lives on in our hearts as we live in that mystic communion with the living and the dead. To those upon whom the hard hand of death has brought grief and separation this comes with especial meaning, forthey can thank God for the precious lives of their dear ones with the same sense of tenderness that the apostle, a prisoner at Rome, could look to his friends at Philippi and give thanks for their fellowship in Christ.

"May we not with this in mind rejoice for the past and at the same time offer thanks by the fullness of our love by going forward in a life of greater devotion to the gospel of Christ."

A minor operation was performed upon Miss Elsie Tyler of 623 North Maryland avenue yesterday at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

MUST DETERMINE FORCES OF LIFE

Life Becomes Calamity When Man Is Sport of Fate, Says Pastor

"It is of supreme importance to man to know whether his life is shaped by blind forces acting upon him without reason or purpose, or by a Power whose motive is love and whose purpose is righteousness."

Rev. H. C. Mullen made this assertion yesterday morning at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church.

"If man is the sport of the god of chance or fate, life loses its meaning and existence becomes a calamity. But if there is a compassionate and wise Providence presiding over humanity, then even its sorrows and sufferings and tragedies may effect a gracious purpose and an abiding good.

"Man is king in the matter of choice of master. He may choose Deity or devil, but not both. And the choice determines whether love shall give meaning to life's experiences or doubt shall lead to the denial of God's goodness. And the choice, in the end, determines the character of the man. Some under suffering grow beautiful, strong, others bitter, reproachful of God, hard of heart. If "poets learn in suffering what they teach in song," God's children learn, also, in sorrow the deeper meanings of life. They who suffer much live most, for sorrow and suffering are the conditions of a profound life.

God Sees All

"We may see but the pain and chagrin of the hour, but God sees it as part of the whole. Man's judgment would say that some things are good and some are evil, but faith in the providential care of the heavenly Father accepts the teaching that joy and sorrow, pai nand pleasure, prosperity and poverty, and all other contradictory experiences, may be, nay, are used to build the character into God-likeness.

"God can grow a pumpkin in three months, but he requires a hundred years to grow an oak and a thousand to make a sequoia. The biting cold, the wind and storm of winter as well as the warmth and beauty of summer are necessary in the making of the giant tree. And all of the varied experiences of life are necessary materials out of which God is building the character that he may pronounce as being "very good."

LOCATE STOLEN CAR

A stolen Ford belonging to Ira Calvin Enoch of 512 West Lexington Drive was located early Friday night in the street in front of 550 Oak street.

THE PEOPLE YOU LAUGH AT

Do there stand as sign posts along the roads of your life the figures of people whom you laughed at and then long afterward found out to be right?

If you say "No" to that question I suspect one of three things about you.

Either you are very young.

Or else you have the habit of forgetting things you do not want to remember, such as that the conclusions you are now coming to you scorned when they were pointed out to you by the others.

Right From the Cradle

Or thirdly, you never are wrong but have always from your infancy chosen the right course and understood the facts of life without having to be taught them by experience!

If none of these things are true, surely there must come times when you hear yourself announcing a fact, and then suddenly remember that someone tried to convince you long ago that was so and that you laughed at him from the height of your superior youth.

I heard myself saying the other day:

"The best way to get rid of a cold is to go to bed and stay there. Nothing will ever stop it so quickly or shorten its course if it gets started. Even if it's fearfully inconvenient it's worthwhile in the end.

Going to Bed for a Cold

And then there loomed up one of those sign posts. I remembered the young doctor who told me that some years ago and how I laughed at the idea of going to bed for a cold, as if one could spare the time out of a busy life!

I'm busier now than I was then but I find I can better spare the time than spare two or three days later.

I once knew a young girl who, when her mother imparted to her some of the facts about life, was not wholly displeased but disbelieving. "I don't believe those things at all," said she. "It's all an old woman's notion."

Of course she had come to laugh at that now. But I wonder if that shakes her faith in herself when she is sure that older people are wrong about other things.

How Long Should We Learn?

Probably not. It does with a very few of us. We go so far in self-knowledge as to see that we were wrong when we were so positive before. But we don't question as to whether we are wrong in what we know now. That's different. We are older, we have learned life's lessons. We forget that experience is a teacher who never closes the term or gives a vacation until the very end of the course.

And even then who knows but what we do not graduate from school altogether but only pass into some higher grade where we shall still be learning, and still looking back to the time when we knew so very little and were so very positive in our ignorance.

Tomorrow—Business and Friendship.

Celebrate Natal Day Of Martyred President

The birthday of William McKinley, twenty-fifth president of the United States, is not passing un-noticed in Glendale, for it is being recognized by a patriotic meeting of Daughters of Veterans at 212 East California. William McKinley was born January 29, 1843, at Niles, Trumbull county, Ohio. He was a lawyer by profession and was a resident of Canton, Ohio, when he was elected twenty-fifth president of the United States in 1897. He was a Republican and a member of the Methodist church.

He was assassinated September 14, 1901, at Buffalo, N. Y., dying at the age of 58 years. His body was taken to Canton, Ohio, for burial.

Diet and Health

NEURITIS

Neuritis (neur from neuron—nerve, itis—inflammation) is an inflammation of the nerves. I told you last week that while indefinite pains are often called neuritis, a true neuritis means a real inflammation of the nerve structure. A general or multiple neuritis is most frequently caused by alcoholic indulgences either in the form of patent medicines or the frankly alcoholic drinks.

Sometimes general neuritis may come in the wake of such diseases as typhoid fever, scarlet fever, malaria, smallpox, erysipelas, grip, diabetes, diphtheria, tuberculosis, and syphilis. In these cases the poisons from the diseases are carried by the blood to the nerves and cause them to be inflamed.

Neuritis can also be caused by metallic poisons used in the trades and in other ways. The workers in the trades that use lead, arsenic, mercury, phosphorous and zinc, coal tar drugs, etc., may have neuritis from absorption through the lungs and skin. Tea, coffee and tobacco have been given as causes, but it is probably rare that they would go to the extent of causing a real inflammation of the nerves. It is possible that autointoxication over prolonged periods can finally inflame the nerves more or less, also.

Among the causes of local neuritis, direct injury is the most common. Sometimes the compression of a nerve by enlarged lymph-nodes or a tumor or callus may cause them. It is also possible that the immoderate use of the muscles, or being in an awkward posture for a long time, will stretch the nerves as well as the muscles and cause them to inflame.

The symptoms are pain and soreness in the area of the affected nerve, sometimes very severe—every little movement is accompanied by a pain and soreness all its own. There are disturbances like numbness, creeping sensations and exceptionally there may be no feeling in the parts. In the majority of cases there is a lessening of the muscular power from slight weakness to actual paralysis (palsy—loss of the use of the muscles.)

The course varies with the intensity of the disease. In the majority of cases the symptoms gradually disappear after the removal of the cause by appropriate treatment, and appropriate treatment afterwards.

You can differentiate neuralgia which means simply a pain in the nerve, from true neuritis by the fact that in neuralgia the pain comes in paroxysms ar at intervals, the tenderness is limited to definite points, and there is no loss of sensibility or muscular power.

If you have neuritis you should see that the affected parts have absolute rest. You may have to use splints and bandages to prevent muscular action. Hot moist application or local hot baths, frequently repeated, you will find beneficial. Sometimes cold applications help in some cases. A saturated solution of epsom salts applied on several thicknesses of gauze also gives relief. If you have a mild form of the disease, belladonna ointments or ointments containing oil of wintergreen gently massaged on the part affected may help.

After the irritation is completely gone you should have systematic massage and electrical treatments to bring the blood to the parts and maintain nutrition of the paralyzed muscles. Passive movements have to be begun to prevent the muscles from concentrating and the joints from stiffening.

You can see from my description, and you know from your feelings if you have it, that neuritis is no trifling disorder. If you have it you had better put yourself under the care of a competent physician.

Steamed Meat and Rice—In most families at least a little of Sunday's roast is still left to serve for Tuesday's dinner. Line a buttered baking dish, or an aluminum mold, with tender boiled rice and fill the center with cooked left-over meat (any kind). Cover top of the dish, and place this dish or mold, in a large saucepan containing boiling water. Let the water boil up around the mold for one hour, then turn out its contents onto your meat platter and serve hot, with the following:

Tomato Sauce—One-half can of tomotoes cooked 20 minutes with one teaspoon of sugar, one-half onion and one-half teaspoon of salt; then rub through a sieve and add either one cup of soup stock, one cup of left-over gravy, or one-half can of clear soup (consomme or bouillon). In a frying pan, brown four tablespoons of butter and rub into this three tablespoons of flour, then gradually add the strained tomato and allow to boil up a few minutes before serving.

Apple Dowdy—Pare apples and measure, after coring and slicing. There should be four pounds of the prepared sliced apple. Put these slices into a buttered baking dish with two-thirds of a cup of brown sugar, one-third of molasses, one cup of cold water, and one generous teaspoon of ground cinnamon, then cover with the following crust: Sift together two cups of bread flour, a pinch of salt and one teaspoon of baking powder; add enough sweet milk to make a dough soft enough to handle. Place this crust on the uncooked apples. Then bake the dish in a hot oven for 30 minutes—or till the crust is done. Now take the crust right off the dish and set it aside, while you slip the dish back into the oven to continue baking till the apples are very tender (covered with a pot-cover). When cool, break the crust into small pieces and stir it into the cooked apples. Serve it with cream.

Baked Squash—Cut the squash into small portions, to make it easy to handle. Then pare each piece after discarding seeds and stringy portion. Fill your quart measure with small pieces of the pared squash, each piece cut about one inch square. Now turn the measureful of uncooked squash into a buttered baking dish with one cup of molasses and one cup of butter. Stir well and bake 50 minutes, or till soft, in a moderate oven, keeping covered at first. Serve hot in the baking dish.

BEAUTY CHATS

by Edna Kent Forbes

LARGE NOSE PORES

The perfect complexion, like the perfect disposition, is seldom met with outside a novel. The most common complexion flaw is a collection of enlarged pores around the nostrils, usually in that little curved part that outlines the nostrils or perhaps all over the nose.

The reason is that the circulation of the blood is more sluggish at this than at any other part of the body. So the skin is less active, and less readily throws off the accumulations of matter that pass out of the body through all the pores. And because of this very sluggishness these pores are the hardest to reduce once they have enlarged.

However, here's the method if you find that you, too, have this imperfection—and you are rarely blessed if a study of your skin in strong sunlight doesn't reveal something of the sort. First, eliminate from your diet all heavy or sweet foods that you think might be taxing the digestion. Second, make sure there is no constipation; indeed, even, if everything seems normal it wouldn't hurt to take a tablespoonful of white mineral oil a day for a while. The waste of the body must pass off freely or the pores will be overworked.

Third, take a daily hot bath. This will cleanse the pores all over the body, leaving them all free to act, and so relieving any possible strain on any one set of them. And fourth, use either the Blackhead Cleansing Powder, which will absorb the collected matter that has enlarged the pores originally, or any very good astringent. Bathe the face thoroughly, with mild soap and hot water, or if this is too drying, rub with cleansing cream and then use the soap and water. Follow with a cold rinse, an ice rub or a spraying with toilet water.

Mrs. F. R.—If the warts are very bad have a doctor remove them with caustic. Very often mild ones can be removed at home by rubbing them with washing soda or with a mixture of olive oil or salt.

Discouraged—If both the arms and the legs are too thin it is quite likely that you are underweight. Take deep breathing and arm exercises, walk a great deal and dance whenever possible. Take six tablespoons of olive oil, two with each meal, or drink about a quart of rich milk every day.

Do the nose pores show?

CHRIST SETTING UP KINGDOM NOW

Signs of Second Coming Are Being Fulfilled, Says Arthur W. Sibley

"Christ is now personally present setting up His kingdom upon the ruins of the kingdoms of this world," asserted Arthur W. Sibley, who spoke last night in the assembly room of the Citizens' Building under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association.

"It is not only true that millions now living will never die," he continued, "but that very soon, about 1925, the millions now dead will begin to come back from the death state.

"Though most Christian people claim to believe in the second coming, they unite in putting the event a long way in the future. When the Disciples asked our Lord concerning His second advent, they did not inquire concerning His coming, as our common version Bible gives it, but what they asked Him was: 'What shall be the sign, or evidence, of thy presence?' How shall we know that you are once more on this earth? And it was this question that Jesus answered giving us the evidence by which we might know that He was present.

He said that, 'Nation would rise against nation' and that there would be 'famine and pestilence and earthquakes in divers places,' 'distress of nations with perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear for looking after these things coming upon the earth,' and 'a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation.' These signs and many more have been fulfilled."

PASTOR RELATES WAYS OF GIVING

Free Will Offering System Has Proved Too Costly; Tithes Advocated

"Method in Giving" was the theme of Dr. James F. Winnard, yesterday morning, at the Tropico Presbyterian church.

"It is possible to live in continuous yet unconscious violation of law," he said. "But when once the law is known then we have no cloak for our sin. This is especially true in regard to our relation to our money and the Kingdom of God.

"The church has for ages been following the plan of 'free will offering' for its support and the system has proved costly. Why experiment longer?

"The solution of all the financial difficulties of the church, and incidentally many of its other difficulies would be found in obedience to this simple text, 'Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse.'

"The purpose of the tithe is not only to raise money but to build character. In fixing the standard of one-seventh of our time and one-tenth of our income God has established a law.

Giving of Tithes

"Method in giving as taught in the Scriptures requires the giving of the tithe and that in a systematic manner. Of course, there are objectors to the system but there is not a conscientious objection that will not be overruled with a few months' faithful practice of the system. And we might add there are probably objections to any of the so-called substitute systems that have been in vogue so many years.

"The financial schemes of the church of today are the laughing stock of the business men of a community. Let a church go to a bank to borrow a sum of money and their proposition will be more closely investigated than any other institution. Some banks even go so far as to make a rule to loan no money to a church. And that in spite of the fact that the church is an institution whose word should be as good as its bond.

"Just as a final argument for the tithe, let me say that in recent statistics it is shown that the average gift per member of all the Protestant bodies in our country was $3.50, while that of one denomination alone that makes tithing a rule was $26.30 per member. It is worth while. Let's do it."

TONGUE IS ONLY MUSCLE YOU MOVE

(Weekly Health Talk, No. 16)
(By Drs. Eble & Eble, Ds.C.)

Your tongue is the only muscle you can move without pain if you become a victim of inflammatory rheumatism. Only the victim of this disease can appreciate the unspeakable torture it inflicts.

The cause of this disease is failure of the kidneys and bowels to properly eliminate the wastes of the body. Because of the kidney weakness an acid condition of the blood develops. The victim suffers at the beginning from 102 to 104 degrees of fever. There is sore throat, vomiting, general uneasiness and the aching pain in the muscles and joints making any movement impossible. Under chiropractic spinal adjustments a normal flow of life impulses over spinal nerve lines is restored and the body returns to normal.

UNCLE BEN SAYS:
"Ef you do yo'r best today, Nevvy, tomorrow is pretty apt to have something better for you."

Unable to Move

"Last winter I was unable to move a muscle except my tongue for three weeks. The pain was torture. It was inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered other attacks, but this was the worst. They fed me with a spoon. I expected to die. Finally, after repeated urgings I tried chiropractic adjustments. I was relieved after the first adjustment and continued to get better, until now I feel, after a year without suffering, that I am forever cured."—H. H. Knock, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1275H.

LAUNCH MOVE TO THWART ECONOMY

Resolution Demanding a Probe of Dismissals Seen As Drive on Governor

By GIL A. COWAN
Special to The Evening News

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—Efforts to thwart Governor Richardson's economy program made themselves apparent in the California senate when Senator J. M. Inman's resolution calling for an investigation of the dismissal of seventeen motor vehicle department inspectors came before the upper house for debate.

This latest proposal for a probe was referred back to a committee after Senator Inman declared Senator Arbuckle was endeavoring to impugn his motives. Senator A. B. Johnson, speaking on the subject, made it plain that he would vote for no measure which would defeat the desire of the electorate last November to have economy with efficiency in government.

Inman held the counties should not be called upon to do the work. Senator Johnson held that the state should not provide them revenue if they were not interested sufficiently to get that which was due them.

Kehoe Is Retained

Another rumpus developed over the employment of Attorney William E. Kehoe to conduct the Jones committee investigations of campaign expenditures. It was pointed out that he had been in the employ of Rudolph Spreckels, chief proponent of the water and power act which will be put on the pan next Monday.

Kehoe was retained by a vote of 23 to 16, all of which seems that Mr. Spreckels is making his fist felt almost anywhere and everywhere in his efforts to cripple the power interests of the west. This little "private war" ought to provide some interesting reading from now on.

And heaven knows the newspaper men have been searching for something sensational in this session of the legislature.

Would Hasten Divorce

Assemblyman Homer Spencer of Oakland, bachelor of law, as well as love, wants to put more pep in the courtships of divorcees.

As a measure to speed up court procedure, he has offered a bill which would permit the awarding of a final decree in a divorce case after six months instead of a year as at present.

Perhaps Rodolph Valentino is a friend of Spencer's.

Chiefs of police were present in person to appeal to the governor for the maintenance of the bureau of criminal investigation which serves the majority of cities with syndicate finger prints and other information leading to the apprehension of many former convicts.

The police had a good argument to present the legislators, also, and several august personages were mistaken for members of the various state commissions. However, the public soon found out who they were and shied clear of the long arms of the law.

The Los Angeles county counsel's office and the Los Angeles city attorney's office are presenting, through local representatives, something like eighty bills, most of which have to do with street work, assessment districts, and other minor matters.

Railroad Men Charge Use of Mob Specials

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—A statement issued by President D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen making national appeal for aid, protection and relief of striking members of Arkansas shopmen following mob disorders, charges the use of "mob specials" and demands drastic action and thorough investigation. Mr. Robertson's statement follows in part:

"It will be interesting to learn the facts as to the influence that prompted the operation of the 'mob specials' over the railroad. That the purpose for which this train was being run was not known seems unbelievable."

A fund of $10,000, set aside by the board of directors of the brotherhood of locomotive firemen, was available today for the relief of members of that organization on strike in Arkansas and declared by the organization to be lacking proper shelter or food, because driven from their homes by the mob. An additional appropriation of $500 for the benefit of the widow and children of E. C. Gregor, chairman of the machinists' organization, hanged by a mob on the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad, was also voted.

Take Depositions in Trial of Communists

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — The taking of testimony for depositions in the case of the state of Michigan against the communists, arrested several months ago, after an alleged midnight meeting in the Michigan woods near St. Joseph, was started in the office of Attorney Frank Walsh, with the testimony of Toney Opolski.

The depositions were taken so that the evidence of the witnesses may be presented before the court when the trial of William Z. Foster, noted labor agitator, and other alleged members of the communist party were placed on trial.

SPORTS

The WORLD OVER
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

A man who has followed the wrestling game for a great many years and seen the performers come and go for several decades, has this to say; "No wrestler has gained the top position in his game who did not wrestle with his legs. When you see a youngster make national use of his legs then you can figure that he has the instincts of the game. The chap who devotes all his time to putting a man down simply with his arms is not going to succeed.

There probably are few wrestlers in the ring today who make more use of their legs than Ad Santel. It is because of the use of his "educated" legs that Santel, a little more than a middleweight, has been able to make such remarkable showings against the top notchers of the game, including even champion Strangler Ed Lewis. Because of his legs Santel is head and shoulders better than any man of his weight and is obliged to give away poundage in order to get a match that will prove interesting to the spectators.

Santel's legs constantly are in use both on the offensive and defensive, and there are many who declare that there never has been a better exponent of the use of the legs in the wrestling game. Gardini, the Italian wrestler is another man who looks like a "comer" because of the manner in which he utilizes his legs. Joe Stetcher's deadly hold about an opponent's body with his legs is well known to the wrestling world.

John Black, the old California golf master is showing every indication that he will make an entire come back at the game in spite of the dangerous and painful injuries he sustained some time ago in an automobile crash. Black was in a hospital for some time and, for a while, it was a question if he would live. When this danger was passed, it was feared he never again would be able to take up golf at anything like his old standard. Recent competition in which Black has participated shows that he will be as good as ever as soon as he recovers the ground lost by loss of practise during his enforced layoff. In the recent Southern California open championships he came in fifth in a mighty high grade field of players, which indicates that all John needs is a little more time to get back his stride.

While Gene Sarazen has shown wonderful periods of ability in his golf tour of the Pacific Coast, yet, on the whole, his play has been considerable of a disappointment to coast golfing galleries, from the point of view of his apparent inability to maintain a standard. At his best Sarazen is a master, but caught off his game, he is likely to be out of the money at any time.

The preliminary work of the University of California oarsmen was started by Coach Ben Wallace last week and the 150 aspirants for the eight seats in the varsity shell will be put through a strenuous two weeks' gymnasium work on the rowing machines before they go out on the water on Oakland estuary.

The annual race for the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate eights is tentatively set for April 21 on the Oakland estuary. The University of Washington as usual will be the opponent of the Californians. Stanford university has not yet reorganized its rowing and will not be back in the fold this year. A new college crew has come into the limelight through the adoption of rowing by the Reed College of Portland. This college is anxious to participate in the annual coast collegiate race and make it a three cornered affair with California and Washington. The University of California oarsmen themselves are anxious to have the new crew come into the race, but there are some doubts as to whether the officials at California and Washington will sanction the entrance of this crew at least this year.

Coach Ben Wallis has a harder task on his hands this year than for some years past. Only three of last year's varsity crew is back in college. They are Bill Williams, captain, who rowed No. 7 last year, Carl Steinnert, No. 4 and Brooks Walker last year's bow man. To offset the loss of the other places in the varsity boat, Coach Wallis has thirteen of the last year's second squad to draw on as well as the entire last year's freshman crew and the other numerous aspirants for positions. The big job ahead of the coach is the finding of a suitable man to stroke the boat. At the present time there are four likely candidates in Jacobus' stroke of the second crew two years ago, Hilton, last year's freshman stroke, Gardner, number of four of last year's second crew and Rogers, a brother of John Rogers, who stroked the famous California crew that took second to the Annapolis crew at Poughkeepsie in 1921.

Just whether California will row in the Poughkeepsie regatta next June is undecided at this time. In the first place the Californians have to win the coast race in order to take its place at Poughkeepsie. In the second place it will be impossible for Coach Wallis to go east this year owing to business matters and it is doubtful if the crew would make the trip unless their coach could find the time to accompany them.

Coach Rus Callow at the University of Washington is getting his material ready for the season. He has a large squad to select from with the majority of last year's great crew back at college. If Washington wins the race it is possible that the crew will go to Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Mallory Appears In Indoor Court House

WILLARD COMES BACK FOR MORE
By Wood Cowan

WHY REPEAT THIS SLAUGHTER
JACK FLOORED JESS SEVEN TIMES AT TOLEDO
DEMPSEY WOULD SLIP UNDER WILLARD'S ALLEGED INVINCIBLE LEFT AND SINK HIS TWO FISTS ELBOW DEEP INTO JESS'S MID-SECTION
WILLARD STILL THINKS HE CAN BEAT DEMPSEY
WOOD COWAN

In recent ring history no champion ever lost his crown by being slugged into such a state of helplessness, in so short a battle, or by being so far outclassed as Jess Willard was when he was knocked from the heavyweight throne by Jack Dempsey at Toledo almost four years ago. It was absolutely pathetic.

Yet now comes this same "Jest" Willard—for he is none other—squawking for another chance in the ring with Manassa Mauler!

We wonder if "Jest" knows any other funny jokes?

Outwardly Willard looks about as he did at Toledo. But four years of inactivity added to advancing years, is a handicap too big for Willard or any other man to overcome. "Jest" could never regain even his Toledo form, while Dempsey is infinitely a better man today than ever before.

"How old is "Jest?"

This moot question must be answered before he will be allowed to box, in New York at least. Records show that at the time of his first appearance as a white hope, back in 1912, he was 24 years old. When Willard fought Arthur Pelky that year he was a gangling youngster who had not obtained his full growth. He was all legs and arms, his body not having kept pace with his limbs. Willard did not reach his full development until he won from Jack Johnson in 1915. When he returned from Havana it was astonishing the way his body had filled out.

It was after he had won the title that someone discovered Willard was four years older than he said he was. At the time "Jest" made no strenuous effort to deny the new age that was wished upon him. Perhaps it made good advertising, for, no man had ever won a title who had started so late in life—and the fact that he had brought the title back to the white race made Willard a champion among champions.

But record books of recent years gave Willard's present age as 40, based upon the following facts: That when a guardianship petition was filed in Pattawattawatomie county, Kansas, in 1901, the age of Jess Willard was specified as 19, according to probate court records. And when he was married at Leavenworth, Kansas, March 13, 1903, the former champion gave his age to the license clerk as 26.

Now "Jest" comes forward with the claim that his birth certificate, along with other vital papers, will prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that he is still a dashing youth of 36 summers.

Jeffries tried to come back when he was 35 and he was an infinitely better thumper than Jess ever was, and it is doubtful whether Johnson was capable of hitting as hard in his fight with Jeffries as Jack Dempsey is today.

Then again Ol' Fitzsimmons was still champion at 37. He won the title from Corbett in 14 rounds at Carson City when he was 35 years old, but Corbett never was the hitter that Dempsey is at present. John L. Sullivan was almost 35 years old before he met defeat at the hands of Corbett in New Orleans.

Jess Willard might look the part of a physical phenom but he wouldn't stay conscious as long in his second meeting with the Jack as he did at Toledo—and Jess admits that he didn't know anything from the time Dempsey landed his first blow, thirty seconds after the opening round started and he was grovelling on the canvas until the referee proclaimed Dempsey the new champion.

THREE BOUTS TO BE STAGED! WOW!

Jack Kearns Plans Whole Show; Willard Is First To Be Assassinated

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Dempsey-Willard enterprise to be held under the benign patronage of Tex Rickard at Jersey City; Dempsey vs. the survivor of the Johnson-Gibbons-Firpo elimination series at the Polo grounds in mid-summer, and the Dempsey-Wills bout to go to Harry Frazee, or sponsors, at the Yankee stadium late in the fall.

These are the plans being carried around, carelessly as it were, in the mind of Jack Debonair Kearns, according to the latest report, alleged to come from the best of authority.

Division of Spoils

They are said to be the outcome of Kearns' determination to divide the risk and at the same time, hurry off home with the largest available purses. He seems to feel that no one promoter can conduct all three bouts and make real money for Jack Kearns. Therefore, he would put that abiding responsibility up to three men, so that each can work out his own little problem without thought or worry of future bouts.

All of them, of course, will find it necessary to show financial responsibility if they wish to do business with Jack Kearns. This will include assurance that the site is acceptable and official interference improbable.

Rickard can qualify here. He is supposed to get the first big date, largely because he seems to have the Willard complex, and no one, outside of Tom O'Rourke, is particularly interested. Kearns, it is said, feels that opposition to Willard's return to the ring will be less enthusiastic if it can be shown that Dempsey is meeting all comers and is only taking Willard in mid-stride.

At any rate, it is certain that Willard would be shouted down if he tried to get on with the champion after the latter had given the rough dry treatment to Wills and others.

It is our opinion that Wills is being cleverly exploited by Kearns with the idea of steaming up interest in other bouts. In this, we are supported by many prominent boxing men, who contend that Wills will never be permitted to meet Dempsey in this country.

Russians Will Offer Armenians Home Land

LAUSANNE, Jan. 29.—George Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation in the Near East peace conference, has announced that Russia would present a solution of the Armenian problem by offering land for the establishing of an Armenian national homeland.

Tchitcherin said that he would make his offer to the afternoon session of the conference.

He pledges sufficient land in Ukrania (interior Russia) for the Armenians to establish a homeland of their own. The allies had demanded that Turkey set aside territory for this purpose, but Angora refused.

The conference has reached a decision on civil hostages and war prisoners which is expected to be signed Monday.

Turkey and Greece are signing an agreement for exchange of civilian populations.

Heidler Holds Visitors to Five Hits in Exciting Game Yesterday

The Glendale Indians aded another scalp to their belts yesterday when they took the Yellow Taxi team of Los Angeles into camp at the short end of a 4 to 1 score after a fast, exciting game, in which the locals showed a distinct improvement in form over that displayed in previous games.

Walter Heidler, the demon fast ball artist of the Indians, fanned 12 of the visitors and held the side down to 5 measly hits, while Wilson's fielding also helped to put Glendale out in front.

A meeting of the team and all other Glendale players has been called at the Sport Shop on Wednesday night, at 7:30 sharp, and the manager wants all the boys out to plan for the future of the club.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—"I have done for my dearies," exclaimed a wild-eyed, disheveled woman as she ran from her home into the street here. A policeman, who investigated, discovered that the woman had drowned her three children in a bath tub.

She was taken to the police station where she was identified as Mrs. Grace Ellasdon. She died later in her cell of a slow poison she had taken before drowning her children.

THEATRES

The Glendale

"A fool there was and he made his prayer, even as you and I," it was these lines by Kipling that inspired the writing of the film story, "A Fool There Was," the attraction today at the Glendale theatre.

In addition to this film there is an Al St. John comedy, "Out of Place."

Another feature of the program is the playing by Paul Carson, organist, of "Call Me Back, Pal o' Mine."

Manager Howe believes that he has a well-balanced program for presentation to Glendale theatregoers for tonight. He feels sure that the patrons will not be disappointed in a single offering.

The T. D. & L.

Harold Lloyd in his latest feature comedy, "Dr. Jack" starts at the T. D. & L. theatre today. It is a five-reel picture and full of Lloyd comedy tnat is a sure cure for all ills.

Ralph Allan gives the following warning, "If you are troubled with anything, no matter what, or simply want a good laugh, which in itself is the greatest tonic on earth, consult Dr. Jack at the T. D. & L. theatre. He will make you feel better and laugh all your troubles away.

"Go early, even attend the matinees as the T. D. & L. won't be large enough to care for the crowds who will want to see the comedy king in his latest success."

Pacific-Southwest Review

Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank.

D.H.Smith

The honor of establishing the first savings bank is disputed. Both England and Germany have claimed to be the birthplace of the first bank of this character. Claims are also made that a genuine savings bank was established in Brunswick in 1765 Hamburg in 1778; Berne, Switzerland, in 1787; Basel in 1792; Geneva in 1794.

Daniel Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," is often credited with having conceived the savings bank idea in 1607. However, the Reverend H. Duncan, of Ruthwell, Scotland, is known as the "father of savings banks." He established one in 1810. By the end of four years it had accumulated $5,800 in savings. Acts to encourage "savings banks" were passed in England in 1817.

SAVINGS BANK'S PURPOSE

Described simply, a savings bank is an institution organized under the laws of the state for the purpose of receiving deposits which are comprised largely of the surplus funds of the small wage earner and small salaried person whose accumulations are not sufficient to command desirable investments. A prescribed proportion of the total savings in a bank is invested in certain approved forms of investment securities with a sufficient earning capacity to pay the depositors a rate of interest on their savings, defray the operating expenses of the bank and leave a margin of profit to be paid to the stockholders of the bank. The legal restrictions placed upon the investment of savings bank funds vary greatly in different states. All are very strict and conservative with view to properly safeguarding the interests of the depositors.

SMALL DEPOSITS WELCOME

Many people hesitate to carry a small amount of money to the bank for deposit. They feel that the bank is not interested in these small sums. This is a mistaken opinion. The primary duty of a savings bank is service to its customers. It is in business to protect the deposits of small depositors as well as large and does not measure the quality of its service by the size of the balance in the customer's pass book. The power of the bank does not grow from any individual's account but from the accumulation of the funds of many. Small deposits count as well as large. Their importance cannot be underestimated either in value to the individual who deposits or the bank which cares for his funds. Through his savings account the depositor is buying, on the installment plan, if you please, the realization of his ambitions, independence, contentment, success; through the amassed savings of the nation its business is able to exist and develop.

SAVINGS GROW RAPIDLY

Small deposits made regularly will cause a bank balance to grow with surprising rapidity. As an example of this, $1 deposited monthly, with 4% interest compounded semi-annually, will amount in ten years to $147.24; $5 monthly in the same time will amount to $736.18; $10 will amount to $1472.43.

Savings accounts may be opened at the Brand Boulevard and Glendale Avenue Branches of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank for as little as one dollar. Accounts in any sum are welcome.

Bridge stretched luxuriously. "There," he repeated. "I've been searching for there for many years; but for some reason I can never get away from here. About two weeks of any place on earth and that place is just plain here to me, and I'm longing once again for there."

His musings were interrupted byq a sweet feminine voice close by. Bridge did not open his eyes at once—he just sat there, listening.

As I was hiking past the woods,
the cool and sleepy summer woods,
I saw a guy a-talking to the sunshine in the air;
Thinks I, "He's going to have a fit—I'll stick around and watch a bit;"
But he paid no attention, hardly knowing I was there.

Then the girl broke into a merry laugh and Bridge opened his eyes and came to his feet.

"I didn't know you cared for that sort of stuff," he said. "Knibbs writes man-verse. I shouldn't have imagined that it would appeal to a young lady."

"But it does, though," she replied; "at least to me. There's a swing to it and a freedom that 'gets me in the eye.'"

Again she laughed, and when this girl laughed, harder-headed and much older men than Mr. L. Bridge felt strange emotions move within their breasts.

For a week Barbara had seen a great deal of the new bookkeeper. Aside from her father he was the only man of culture and refinement of which the rancho could boast, or, as the rancho would have put it, be ashamed of.

She had often sought the veranda of the little office and lured the new bookkeeper from his work, and on several occasions had had him at the ranchhouse. Not only was he an interesting talker; but there was an element of mystery about him which appealed to the girl's sense of romance.

She knew that he was a gentleman born and reared, and she often had found herself wondering what tragic train of circumstances had set him adrift among the flotsam of humanity's wreck. Too, the same persistent conviction that she had known him somewhere in the past that possessed her father clung to her mind; but she could not place him.

"I overheard your dissertation on here and there," said the girl. "I could not very well help it—it would have been rude to interrupt a conversation." Her eyes sparkled mischievously, and her cheeks dimpled.

"You wouldn't have been interrupting a conversation," objected Bridge, smiling; "you would have been turning a monologue into a conversation."

"But it was a conversation," insisted the girl. "The wanderer was conversing with the bookkeeper. You are a victim of wanderlust, Mr. L. Bridge—don't deny it. You hate bookkeeping, or any other such prosaic vocation as requires permanent residence in one place."

"Come now," expostulated the man. "That is hardly fair. Have I not been here a whole week?"

They both laughed.

"What in the world can have induced you to remain so long?" cried Barbara. "How very much like an old timer you must feel—one of the oldest inhabitants."

"I am a regular aborigine," declared Bridge; but his heart would have chosen another reply. It would have been glad to tell the girl that there was a very real and a very growing inducement to remain at El Orobo Rancho. The man was too self-controlled, however, to give way to the impulses of his heart.

At first he had just liked the girl, and been immensely glad of her companionship because there was so much that was common to them both—a love for good music, good pictures, and good literature—things Bridge hadn't had an opportunity to discuss with another for a long, long time.

And slowly he had found delight in just sitting and looking at her. He was experienced enough to realize that this was a dangerous symptom, and so from the moment he had been forced to acknowledge it to himself he had been very careful to guard his speech and his manner in the girl's presence.

He found pleasure in dreaming of what might have been as he sat and watched the girl's changing expression as different moods possessed her; but as for permitting a hope, even, of realization of his dreams—ah, he was far too practical for that, dreamer though he was.

As the two talked Grayson passed. His rather stern face clouded as he saw the girl and the new bookkeeper laughing there together.

"Ain't you got nothin' to do?" he asked of Bridge.

"Yes, indeed," replied the latter.

"Then why don't you do it?" snapped Grayson.

"I am," said Bridge.

"Mr. Bridge is entertaining me," interrupted the girl, before Grayson could make any rejoinder. "It is my fault—I took him away from his work. You don't mind, do you, Mr. Grayson?"

Grayson mumbled an inarticulate reply and went his way.

"Mr. Grayson does not seem particularly enthusiastic about me," laughed Bridge.

"No," replied the girl, candidly; "but I think it's just because you can't ride."

"Can't ride!" ejaculated Bridge. "Why haven't I been riding ever since I came here?"

"Mr. Grayson doesn't consider anything in the way of equestrianism riding unless the ridden is perpetually seeking the life of the rider," explained Barbara. "Just at present he is terribly put out because you lost Brazos. He says Brazos never stumbled in his life, and even if you had fallen from his back he would have stood beside you waiting for you to remount him. You see he was the kindest horse on the ranch—especially picked for me to ride. However in the world did you lose him, Mr. Bridge?"

The girl was looking full at the man as she propounded her query. Bridge was silent. A faint flush overspread his face. He had not before known that the horse was hers. He couldn't very well tell her the truth, and he wouldn't lie to her, so he made no reply.

Barbara saw the flush and noted the man's silence. For the first time her suspicions were aroused, yet she would not believe that this gentle, amiable drifter could be guilty of any crime greater than negligence or carelessness. But why his evident embarrassment now? The girl was mystified. For a moment or two they sat in silence, then Barbara rose.

"I must run along back now," she explained. "Papa will be wondering what has become of me."

TODAY—American bells now cheer the peasants in northern French regions devastated by the war, writes Alice Langelier, Paris correspondent.

TOMORROW—The "Ozark peddler," door to door vender of St. Louis, is almost extinct, due to encroaching modern commercialism, writes W. F. Sullivan, St. Louis correspondent.

By ALICE LANGELIER
For International News Service

PARIS, Jan. 29—The chimes of American bells are heard these days in devastated regions of northern France. They were given by the "Angelus Fund" in memory of Americans and well-known Frenchmen who lost their lives in the late war and replace the old bells taken by the Germans to be melted into cannon.

For several years hundreds of villages have been without bells which play a very important part in the community life of France. They ring for new babies and they ring when they marry and again when they die. Of all the material losses sustained by the French peasants, probably not one was felt more acutely than the disappearance of the bells.

Every dog has its day they say, and now it's the poodle's turn. During the war this little creature became almost extinct. Dog fanciers were too busy to think of poodles. They have now begun to take the matter in hand and numbers of the woolly animals are seen along the boulevards cradled in women's arms and muffs, or trotting at their sides on their morning walks through the Bois.

Madame Thibier, of Dorres, has just died at the age of 94, leaving ninety-eight children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. "Nothing troubled her last hours," says Femina. Hers was the end of a perfect day."

A prominent French senator who had a deal to do with refusing the women the vote has just received a menacing letter from one of the fair would-be voters.

"You will not finish reading these words," it ran, "because you will have breathed the white powder which this letter contains and you will die before many moments."

The white powder had already dropped from the envelope and spread to the floor. Without a doubt it is the explosive that is blowing up so many stoves thought the good senator, who immediately telephoned the police. They hurried forth, closed the radiators, gas jets, and the like, and armed with a dark lantern, entered the room, gathered up the dangerous stuff and took it to the nearest pharmacist for examination.

"Bicarbonate of soda," was the verdict.

A superior course in cooking is being instituted in French schools under the direction of the bureau of technical education. There will be courses in dietetics as well as ordinary home-cooking. Now the women can spend long hours dancing in the afternoon and obtain pardon from their good husbands by setting forth a most delicious dinner.

For the first time since the war the German uniform is to be seen in Paris. It is in the theatre, of course. At the first performance of "La Terre Humaine," the flat helmet and the gray-green uniforms did not bring forth the slightest murmur of approbation or protestation from French onlookers.

The caterpillar crawl across the Sahara is arousing great interest in France as well as in the desert. Of the five machines which left Touggourt on December 17 for Timbuctoo, 3300 kilometers distant, all have reached the Hoggar, which the Touaregs call the real center of the sands. At the oasis of In-Salah the men were greeted by a most enthusiastic demonstration of the natives. Camel riders and horsemen lined the heights bordering the palm groves and went to meet the Citroen caterpillars when they hove in view. It was really some of the hardest work we have struck so far, said the chauffeurs, to make headway through the yelling crowds of men, women and children, Arabs, Berbers and negroes. Traveling by torrid heat during the day and frost by night has only hardened both men and machines, for they apparently show no signs of rough wear.

Henri Heine's tomb in the old Montmartre cemetery the "city of the dead," which is on the very edge of the gay "city of the living," had its usual flowers for New Year's Day. Before the war the spot was visited by great numbers of people, who dropped their cards in a stone jar. Then came the war and a group of Germans arranged through a Parisian florist to keep flowers on the tomb. Since the Armistice payments have been impossible, but the Parisian florist wrote the Germans:

"Heine's tomb has never been without flowers and I shall see to it that it is never without its usual bouquet."

"There are ash trays," read a little poster distributed by Monsieur Paul about the rooms of his home before giving a brilliant "soiree" during the holiday week. By this means the next morning did not find him woefully counting the number of holes burned in his fine carpets by cigaret stubs carelessly thrown away.

If quantity and not quality counted, 1922 has been a record year for the wine production in France. Official estimates put the output at 1,523,518,450 gallons, and this does not represent the total figure, for many growers do not tell the government officials how much they make for their own home consumption. With this amount the stock on hand is about two billion gallons to begin another New Year.

A sword, sabre and long dagger once belonging to Andrew Jackson have recently been found in the collection of a French connoisseur of arms. The three pieces, together with the scabbards and the sword belts to which they are attached, are in perfect condition and are much prized by the owner, who has no intention of parting with them. The dagger bears an inscription showing it to be the gift of Thomas Jefferson and the sword was presented by the officers who fought under the general at Horseshoe Bend, Ala.

Upon the return of Clemenceau Le Petit Bleu published a cartoon showing "Marianne" (France) greeting the "Tiger" at the boat landing with these words: "And suppose now you return and tell the Americans to quiet down." The day of his departure for the new world the newspapers announced his intention of going to America for the purpose of "stirring them up a bit."

LONG EXTENSION CORDS

The majority of loud speakers are now used in some part of the house or room remote from the receiving apparatus. The illustration shows an extension which should fill a long felt want. One end of the cord is fitted with a standard plug, while the other end is fitted with a standard jack; one will be fitted to the receiver, and the end with the jack taken to any remote part of the house, where the loud speaker can be attached by means of a plug. The lengths of the cords range from 10 to 100 feet.

TUNING TO RESONANCE

We can now proceed to obtain resonance between the open or antenna circuit and the closed condenser circuit. An arbitrary adjustment of the secondary of the oscillation transformer can first be tried, say, bringing all its turns into use, unless perhaps it is known that the natural period of the antenna is so large that a reduction of inductance is necessary to obtain the desired wave length. In that event it would be necessary to carefully adjust the number of turns needed by means of the wave meter. In this connection it is well to note that a station is generally built with some definite purpose in mind, and the antenna is generally so constructed that its natural or fundamental period is considerably less than the wave length to be utilized. A fundamental wave length, about two-thirds of the wave length to be used makes a very efficient transmitter, and permits an adjustment to resonance that will give in most cases the maximum degree of radiation in the antenna circuit without recourse to an excessive amount of "loading." It permits also a certain flexibility that allows several wave lengths to be covered on the same transmitter. Of course it must be remembered that local conditions often dictate the type and size of the actual antenna, and it is for this very reason that the secondary of the oscillation transformer is made variable and that an antenna loading inductance is provided.

Having made an arbitrary adjustment of the secondary turns of inductance, the key should be closed and held down permitting a constant stream of oscillations to flow into the antenna. Unless the circuits, closed and open, are completely out of resonance, a wave meter reading at this time will show if the desired wave length is correct. If it is not accurate a correction of the amount of inductance in the primary may be necessary, depending whether the reading is high or low. Having checked the wave length, adjustments for maximum radiation in the antenna circuit may be proceeded with, which, when accomplished, will indicate resonance.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SUSIE'S SWEEPER.

"Uncle Wiggily, here's some one to see you," called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Some one to see me—I hope it isn't the Skillery Scallery Alligator, with humps on his tail, and I hope it isn't the busy Bob Cat," said the bunny, as he felt his pink nose beginning to shiver.

"Oh, no, nothing like that!" laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "It's Susie Littletail, and she's crying."

"Why are you crying, Susie?" asked Mr. Longears, as he saw tears running down the cheeks of the little rabbit girl, for Susie Littletail was a rabbit, you know.

"Oh, my little carpet sweeper is broken," sobbed Susie. "It won't sweep the carpet in my doll's house any more and I wanted to play house with Lulu and Alice Wibblewobble, but I can't if my carpet sweeper is broken and—Oh, boo hoo! Boo hoo!" And Susie sobbed backward and frontward at the same time.

"There, there! Don't cry!" said Uncle Wiggily, soothingly. "I'll see if I can mend your carpet sweeper."

Susie's carpet sweeper was a toy, which her mother had bought on the little rabbit girl's birthday. A carpet sweeper, either a toy one or a real one, is a sort of box on wheels, as perhaps you know. The box is pushed around over the carpet by a long handle, and inside the box is a sort of dusting brush, that whirls like a piano stool or a merry go 'round, only different. The brush sweeps up all the dirt from the carpet into the box and then you empty it out in the ash can.

"Only my carpet sweeper won't sweep any more," sighed Susie. "It rolls right over the dirt and won't take it up."

"Let me see it," said Uncle Wiggily. And when he looked inside the toy sweeper the bunny found that there were a lot of tangled threads around the brush, stopping it from turning.

"This is easily mended," said Uncle Wiggily. He cut away the threads, pulling them from the sweeper brush. Then when Susie rolled it over the carpet the brush took up the dirt as well as before.

"Hurray!" cried Susie. "Now I can play house with Lulu and Alice Wibblewobble."

And she did, having a fine time when the two duck girls waddled over to pretend they were little housekeepers with their dolls. Susie's sweeper swept wonderfully well.

"Those sweepers are very good things," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he watched, for a moment, Susie and the duck girls at the play house. "If a toy sweeper takes up dirt so well, a large one would do it much better. I think I'll get Nurse Jane a carpet sweeper. But I'll surprise her with it."

So the bunny gentleman hopped to the eighteen and nineteen cent store and there he bought a large carpet sweeper for Nurse Jane.

"Will you take it or have it sent?" asked the little mousie girl clerk.

"I'll take it," said Uncle Wiggily, and he did. He wanted to get it home without Nurse Jane seeing it. The muskrat lady was not in the hollow stump bungalow when Uncle Wiggily reached it with the carpet sweeper, and the bunny gentleman said:

"I'll try it myself and see how it works." Over the rugs and carpet he began pushing the sweeper on its rubber wheels. Inside the brush twirled around, taking up the dust inside the box. "This is a fine sweeper," said Uncle Wiggily, when, all of a sudden, the door opened. Uncle Wiggily thought it was his muskrat lady housekeeper, and he was just going to call: "Surprise on Nurse Jane!" when he happened to look up and there stood the Woozie Wolf.

"Oh, ho!" howled the Wolf, sitting down in the middle of the floor and sticking his tail out straight. "Oh, ho. So it's you making the noise, it is?"

"What noise?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"A noise like thunder," answered the Wolf. I heard it as I stood outside your bungalow, waiting for ears to nibble."

"I didn't make any thunder," said the bunny. "It must have been this carpet sweeper. The wheels do make rather a loud noise."

"Well, no matter about that, I came in to nibble your ears!" growled the Wolf.

"Oh, would you please let me finish sweeping this rug before you nibble me?" asked the bunny. Without waiting for an answer he rolled the carpet sweeper right over the Wolf's tail. The brush in the sweeper twisted around the Wolf's tail and turned it partly up inside the box.

"Ouch! Wouch! What are you doing?" howled the Wolf. "My tail—Wow!"

"Oh," laughed Uncle Wiggily; "I thought your tail needed sweeping; that's all. Now just wait a minute and——"

"No, I'll not wait another second!" howled the Wolf. "Oh,, you've 'most pulled my tail off!" And, yanking it from the carpet sweeper, out of the bungalow ran the bad chap, and he didn't nibble the bunny's ears after all.

"Hum!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman with a happy smile on his face, "carpet sweepers are good for something else than cleaning rugs. They are good for pulling tails! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

And if the spool of thread doesn't try to crawl through the buttonhole and tickle the needle in the eye, you shall next hear about Sammie's sail.

Former Glendalians to Make Home in Seattle

Reports from Seattle, Washington, tell of the safe arrival by motor of T. J. Meagher and daughter Geraldine, former Glendale residents.

Mr. Meagher is to make his home in Seattle with his sister, Mrs. Mary Damerow, while Miss Meagher is to enter an exclusive private boarding school for girls in the Capitol Hill district.

At this school she will complete high school and normal work and take a special course in piano and vocal training.

A letter from the Meaghers states that they are receiving their Glendale Evening News every day and are thus able to keep up with affairs in Glendale.

Collection of Stamps Shows Scope of Work

The international scope of the work done by the Harrower Laboratory of Glendale is demonstrated by the collection of letters from many foreign countries that has been framed and placed in the lobby of the postmaster's office by the director of translations of the laboratory. The letters come from practically every country on the globe, and many varieties of postage stamps are also shown in the collection, which is of intense interest to philatelists, students of geology.

Those who are interested in seeing this collection can do so by calling at the postoffice at any time during the day.

Social Events

Artists' Revelry

A gaily-costumed company was received Saturday night at "Whispering Pines," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude G. Putnam at 424 North Glendale avenue, where the Artists' Guild of Southern California held their fourth annual bal amsque.

Motley costumes, grotesque and funny, were worn. All were original in design and made by the artists themselves. There were pirates bold, Turkish harem garbs, French Latin Quartier artists, bats, spiders, Spanish dons, Apaches and "seagoing" gobs.

One of the features of the affair was the "Magic of Abdel" by Agosta Bissiri, sleight-of-hand artist.

The spacious rooms of the Putnam home were transformed by posters and balloons into a replica of the Bal Bullier in Paris and the party was much in the same spirit.

At 1 o'clock in the morning a barbecue supper was served in the unique Aztec room of the home. During the supper Ernest Klein, president of the Guild, outlined many new plans for the future activities of the Guild. Of particular interest was his announcement that a life class is to be held one night a week until the first of July.

The Guild is composed of artists of southern California, all of whom are engaged in producing illustrations.

Members of the guild and a group of guests were included in the company.

The table was attractively decorated with pink sweet peas and the pink color scheme was further carried out in the favors and hand-painted place cards.

Henry Breckenridge has been even more unfortunate than his sister, suffering a broken leg just at the Christmas holiday season, followed by a severe attack of bronchitis. But he is now well on the way to recovery. The cast is off his leg and the doctors pronounce it just as straight as ever. In arranging for the meetings Harry Marple has had charge of the music.

CLASS IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE DIVIDED INTO TWO BRANCHES

Needlecraft and Cookery Teach Girls to Make Clothes and Manage Homes

DOMESTIC SCIENCE is divided into two branches at Glendale Union high school. Needlecraft is taught by Miss Wilhelmina Hobush, while Miss Ellen J. Hanson teaches cookery.

"I hope that the work here is practical," asserted Miss Hanson, recently. "I would hate to be in it if it weren't. We don't do a lot of fancy cookery, although, of course, the girls do some. We aim to teach them the fundamentals of good cooking and the proper combination of foods so as to secure well balanced meals. The girls are taught to make practical dishes that could be made in any home. They are taught the general principles of cooking so that they will not be tied to a cookbook for the rest of their lives."

Study of Foods

A thorough study of everyday foods is taken up. Girls learn which foods are the most digestible and how to buy them to the best advantage, cook them so as to retain a maximum amount of nutrition, and serve them in an appetizing manner.

Needlecraft classes are equally practical, according to Miss Hobush, who remarked recently that the girls certainly seem to get a lot out of their work. She commented upon the fact that a number of them are now wearing dresses and hats made by themselves.

The B-9 class in sewing spends most of its time upon the study of cotton and textiles. Girls learn to make underclothing and gingham dresses.

The A-9 class takes up a study of costume lines and the girls are permitted to make more elaborate dresses.

The advanced classes in sewing devote more time to costume construction and to problems of color combinations. Each girl is given what is known as a junior problem, which includes the making of an outfit for a child ranging from 2 to 6 years of age.

Millinery Course

The millinery course teaches the girls to design a hat, make its frame, cover it, trim it, and line it. Each girl is given an individual problem as to the most attractive manner of trimming a hat, and another problem as to the most satisfactory method of renovating a certain hat. She is required to make a child's hat during the term.

Notebooks are kept by all the girls who take work in the domestic science department, and they make notes upon recipes and proper methods of procedure in needlecraft. They also collect samples of cloth, and obtain in this way a comparative knowledge of fabrics.

The domestic science department next term is offering the following number of classes in the following subjects: B-9 sewing, 1; A-9 sewing, 6; B-19 sewing, 1; A-10 sewing 1; millinery, 1; B-9 cooking, 1; A-9 cooking, 2; advanced cooking, 1.

GLIMPSE OF GOD, PASTOR'S THEME

Christ Is Perfect Picture of Father in Heaven, Says Rev. Rasmus

Rev. H. I. Rasmus' subject last night at the First Methodist church was "Our Glimpse of God."

The text for the sermon was, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father."

"In the heart of Jesus was the consciousness that He was like unto God. The setting is that immortal one in the upper room; it is that teaching of immortality which has given to the world its most profound and lasting hope.

"Philip saith unto the Master," Lord, show us the Father." And Jesus answered, "Philip, have I been so long time with thee, and yet hast thou not known Me? He that hath seen Me, hath seen the Father."

"Jesus was the express image of His forbear, God. But how should He know this? True, His heart must have told Him so; but what external evidence did Christ have that in fullness, beauty and power, He was like unto God?

"This brings us to one of the most profound teachings of the Christian faith, that of the pre-existent Christ. Before all things were, Christ was with God. Let your minds travel back over the ages from epoch to epoch, from century to century, whereon history has written her royal lineage, and you find yourself at a time when this world was but a thought in the mind of God, when the Creator's skillful fingers had not as yet fashioned the blue firmament above; the mountains, valleys, shining rivers and ocean of restless power beneath. Then Christ was with God. Who could better know the forthshining of the Father's glory than He who was with Him before the beginning of the world?

God Is Revealed

"Why should there be anything unusual about Christ showing forth God? Everyday we see them, children who show forth their parents; the parents' appearance, character and habits of life. So, He revealed God's appearance, character and great habits of mind and heart. He was the express image of the Father, the forthshining of His glory.

"He has revealed God's appearance; His depth of heart; His great moods of thought; His finest character; His attitude towards men; His supreme sacrifice. In Christ, we have a perfect picture of God."

Six More Names Added To $25 Dinner Guests

Six more names were added this morning to the list of those who have agreed to purchase tickets for the $25 dinner to be given tonight by the Community Service in its drive for funds for the coming year's work. Those who have come in today are C. W. Ingledue, Jesse E. Smith, Acacia Avenue School, Mrs. Nanno Woods of the Community Players, Glendale Advancement Association, and the Pacific Avenue Parent-Teachers' Association.

It is pointed out that the amount of $25 is a contribution to the funds of the organization for the year's work, and it may be paid either in cash or at quarterly intervals, as most convenient for the donor. Anyone who desires to aid in the work can send in his name to George B. Karr, and reservations for the dinner can also be secured through Mr. Karr.

SORROW FOLLOWS FAITH'S FAILURE

Today's New Knowledge Forms Bulwark in Life, Is Claim

"Science and Faith" was the subject of Rev. C. M. Calderwood yesterday morning at the Congregational church.

"Faith is the most important element in religion," he asserted.

"There are some people who, because of little religions training, have no faith. They have never been taught to trust in a power beyond their own. They cannot see beyond today and they cannot value that which cannot be measured or weighed.

"Some people have had a faith which was built upon the sand and when sorrow and disaster came it fell. It was not a faith built upon a personal experience with God, it was not built upon a trust in the eternal Father, it was not built upon a confidence in the saving power of Jesus Christ.

"The faith of some has been shattered by the new knowledge of today. This need not be so. The new knowledge is not an enemy to faith but rather another bulwark of faith. The knowledge of the wonderful way in which God has created things does not hide God from us; it reveals God's knowledge, power and care for us.

Easier To Believe

"God is not driven out of the heavens because we understand the nature of an eclipse. God means more to us when we look through a telescope and see the glory of the heavens. When we know that radio is filling the heavens with human messages it is easier to believe that God can send messages to us. When we see what man can do when he obeys the laws of the natural world it becomes easier for us to believe that man can do greater things when he knows and obeys the laws of the spiritual world.

"A man's knowledge may be shattered by a revelation of new knowledge but his faith need not be. We should not want or expect all knowledge to be petrified. St. Paul reminds us that old things are passed away and that all things are become new. He tells us how we see through a glass darkly. We have not reached the end of knowledge and so we should not be disturbed when we discover something new. May not the discoveries of science be a fresh revelation of God?"

Glendale's Peacock Is Shown in Screen News

Hardly a day passes but that some Glendalian gets a letter from "the folks back home" saying that they have either seen Glendale's peacock strut across the film screen or appear in the pictorial section of some eastern paper.

The latest mention comes from Samuel Daniels in a letter to his sister Miss Eva Daniels of 324 West Colorado. Mr. Daniels has visited his sister in Glendale so he was greatly interested in seeing the big floral peacock on the moving picture screen in a Boston theatre.

GOD IS REVEALED AS DIVINE LOVE

Christian Science Reinstates Teachings of Christ, Lecturer Claims

"Christian Science has come to reveal that God is divine principle, Love," asserted George Shaw Cook of Chicago who lectured yesterday afternoon at the Christian Science church.

"Christian Science is re-instating primitive Christianity and re-establishing the teachings of the Master Christian as demonstrated by him and by his early followers in the healing of sickness and sin.

"The Scriptures tell us in the first chapter of Genesis that man was created in the image and after the likeness of God. A true likeness is that which perfectly expresses its original. If, therefore, man is created in the likeness of God, he must be exactly like his creator.

If God is Spirit, man, in His likeness, must be spiritual. If God is Love, man, in his true nature, must be loving, gentle, kind, compassionate. If God is Life, man must be and is the living image of life. This man, the true man, the only real man, is not subject to chance nor change.

Material Viewpoint

"From the material point of view man seems to be nothing but an organism, with a mind inside of it, a mere machine controlled by a supposed intelligence, which is invisible and which has never been satisfactorily explained by human philosophy.

"Many people in the Orient believe the seat of intelligence to be in the stomach; and it might just as well be there as in the brain, for there is no essential difference between the kind of stuff that constitutes the stomach and that which constitutes the brain. Under chemical analysis they would both yield exactly same product.

"The difference, then, is one of belief only; and the fact is that neither the brain nor the stomach can originate the least bit of real intelligence.

Mrs. Eddy's Precept

"If, as Mrs. Eddy says, there is no sensation nor intelligence in matter, it is obvious that matter cannot be sick or in pain, and that if there seems to be a sense of pain or illness, it must be in thought, and not in the body. This fact having been discerned, the futility of treating thought conditions, or mental states, with material remedies becomes evident.

"How impossible it would be to remove an erroneous mental condition by the use of drugs, mineral water, mud baths, or even by means of a surgical operation. Yet every day adds to the list of mental causes for disease admitted by physicians. Among the mental causes for sickness that have been recognized by physicians are fear, worry, hatred, and anger. To these Christian Scientists would add envy, jealousy, greed, dishonesty, and all flagrant and subtle phases of sin."

A Glendale Service That Is Free for Public Use

Mr. Professional and Business man, YOU cannot advertise the fact that you are the most responsible and representative business or professional man in your line. The public would NOT believe you. Our Selected Directory Service can do "just that" for you, and the public have confidence in our ability to judge. There is no other way the business and professional man can get anything like this Service. The system in our office is simplicity itself. The results expected are certain.

The Cutler Selected Directory Service Devices furnish up-to-date Directory Service. They are constructed like the latest vertical card filing system, the directory cards being selected at the command of the operator, the fingers of the mechanism reach down and lift them out instantaneously and automatically for the free use of the public. Should any of the information contained on the cards become obsolete the card is merely removed and reprinted. On account of the fact that the Devices are displayed in the most prominent and accessible locations in Railway Stations, Hotels, Clubs, Drug Stores and public places generally and contain the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the responsible business and professional people in Southern California, in addition to information of continual interest to the public, the use of this Service has become a public habit and a source of dignified and valuable publicity for those whose names are listed therein.—Advertisement.

RAIL COMMISSION SLASHES BUDGET

$184,898 Cut by Revision of Estimated Expense of Next Two Years

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—The newly-organized railroad commission has reduced its budget request $184,898 as a result of an intensive pruning of prospective expenses, it was disclosed here when President Clyde Seavey conferred with the board of control and Governor Richardson.

In a letter to the governor, President Seavey said:

"Since the fore part of the present month there has come to the knowledge of this commission, as well as to all departments of the state, definite information as to the probable revenues which will be available for state purposes for the coming biennium. Under the extraordinary conditions which face the state at this time we recognize the difficulties which confront the fiscal officers of the state government. With a desire to cooperate to the fullest extent in meeting the emergency, this commission has made an intensive study of its existing organization and of the relative importance of matters which come before it, with the idea of presenting to you a revised budget that will aid you in meeting the revenue emergency, and will at the same time allow this commission to function without seriously crippling the service which, under the law, must be given to the public.

Revised Figures

I therefore submit a revised figure on this basis, which asks for an appropriation of $687,400, which is a saving over the previous budget of $184,898. The deductions from the original budget are made up of the following items:

Materials and supplies, $10,000; salaries and wages, $129,600; services and expenses, $7,000; saving for five months of 1923, $20,000; revised estimate of fund credit, $27,000.

"It is the opinion of this commission that these revised figures are the minimum amount which will allow the railroad commission to function for the coming two years without a serious breakdown in this organization, and they are submitted in consonance with your expressed desire that while economy must be practiced, no economy should be attempted which will seriously undermine the work which has been undertaken by the progressive legislation, during the last decade."

TWO CLASSES OF MEN CONTRASTED

'Habit of Getting By' Subject Of Rev. Cole's Sermon to Mid-Year Students

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered to the Glendale Union High school mid-year class of 1923 last night at the Central Christian church.

Rev. C. A. Cole took as his subject "The Habit of Getting By."

"There are," he remarked, "two classes of men around us."

"There is the man of cautious common sense, willing to do his duty, but, careful to do no more. He measures his margins closely and is satisfied if he clear the bar by a fraction of an inch. His aim in the language of the street is to 'get by' but nothing more.

"Then there is the man who habitually overstates his own case and overdoes his duty. There is always a touch of exaggeration about his actions and a touch of the fanatic about his ideas. He is not content merely to get by—he must have a wide margin as well.

Course of Honor

"One of the most familiar figures we see in the world today is the man, who is always driving a sharp bargain and who is always on the ragged edge of moral rectitude. He is the employer who is always buying in the lowest market irrespective of every other human consideration. He is the laborer who deliberately keeps the output of the market down. He is the student who is content with any mark above the dead line.

"The Christian religion is not a religion of 'past-men'; it is the religion of those who elect the honor school. It is a religion that makes a safe berth between one's self and evil. One doesn't need to be either a prude or a coward to come to the conclusion that there are many aspects of human life and action which he might as well give a wide berth. You cannot let your mind dwell on dirt and not get soiled.

Perseverance Urged

"No power on earth can make a man go around the great prohibitions of moral life if he chooses to clip the corners. But, if you want to find out what the light-house is for, just run head on into the rocks. If you want to find out what the ten commandments are, break one of them.

"It is the very essence of Christianity to strike five or six times when the world of men is content to strike but three times."

IT'S NOT THAT KIND

PERIL LURKS IN FLATTERY, SAID

Teacher of Bible Class Tells Danger to Followers of Christian Faith

"There is no greater peril to Christ's witnesses than that of putting on the salve of flatery," remarked Keith L. Brooks yesterday morning in the council room at the city hall before the Men's Bible Class of the Presbyterian church.

"The story is told of a supply preacher who was filling a new pulpit and was cautioned before the morning service, by the head deacon, that he should be careful not to say a word against dancing, for some of the members danced; nor against drinking, for one of the prominent members was a brewer; nor against card playing, for many of the prominent members were attending parties. The supply, in dismay, asked, "What shall I preach against?" After a moment of thought, the deacon's face brightened and he said, 'Hit the Jews. There isn't a one in our church.'

"With flattery very naturally goes covetousness. Worldly people sometimes charge that Christian workers are grafters. Usually such knockers have little reason to complain, as they have never given anything to Christian work themselves."

Corsets of Style and Comfort

Poise, comfort and grace, style, fit and beauty, come only from an inner consciousness of being rightly dressed. But CORSETS come first. If they are right, everything looks right; if they are wrong, no matter how stylish a dress or suit may be, it will not "fit" right.

"Regaliste-Slimlooks," as their name implies, are scientifically designed to lend that quality of trim slenderness and grace—the basic principle of woman's charm and poise. They are ideal for average and full figures. If you are a trifle stout, you have a problem when it comes to corsets—to procure those that truly hold up your surplus flesh, give you slim-looking lines, and, at the same time, are comfortable.

"Perfect Comfort!" That is the verdict of the many full-figured women who have selected their proper Regaliste Models. Every woman wishes deep down in her heart to be slender. Every woman wishes to be graceful. Today's styles demand the Slender Silhouette. And the foundation of it all is CORSETS. Some women are blessed with a good figure by Nature—others have to cultivate one. But, in any case, the proper corset is the prime essential in retaining stylish, graceful lines.

We are prepared to show a full line of Regaliste Corsets ranging in price from $5 to $17.50. If your time is limited, call and make an appointment for a fitting. A graduate corsetiere will be glad to take care of your needs.
